Lexington, KY – The employees of Brett Construction Company are doing all they can to help make sure the holidays are both warmer and brighter for those in need. The company adopted two families in need from the Children's Advocacy Network of the Bluegrass and also held an employee coat drive to benefit the Lexington Rescue Mission.

"Our company is made up of a great group of people who all value giving back to the community and helping others in need," said Brett Setzer, CEO of Brett Construction Company. "We've been adopting a family for several years now, but this year we wanted to do more. Our employees showed how truly generous they are with the results."

Both drives began December 1 and concluded this week. The two families adopted included a family of five and a family with two children, with gifts ranging from clothes and essentials to toys, games and athletic equipment. Brett Construction Company has been adopting families for the past seven years. The coat drive resulted in 66 new and gently used coats being donated. This was the first year for the coat drive.

The Children's Advocacy Network of the Bluegrass is a non-profit organization established in 1994 and dedicated to reducing the trauma experienced by child victims of sexual abuse within the 17-county Bluegrass region. Services include coordination of agencies during investigation and prosecution, providing education to professionals and the public, and providing therapeutic support and victim assistance. All services are provided at no cost to children and their non-offending families.

The Lexington Rescue Mission is an inter-denominational Christian non-profit that began in 2000. Services include free hot meals for those in need, assistance with meeting basic needs, housing assistance, employment assistance and job placement services, transitional housing, ex-offender re-entry services, and spiritual care.

Brett Construction Company is a commercial construction company headquartered in Lexington, Kentucky, with more than 30 years of experience. The company employs 39 people.
